WE'VE BEEN BUILDING THE HOME OF TOMORROW FOR MORE THAN 50 YEARS.

Since 1947, the name Elliott's has been synonymous with personal service and unmatched selection. Today, Elliott's three stores offer more than 100,000 different items, and the kind of customer care you thought was a thing of the past.

Plus, there's Elliott's Hardware Plus — a unique "store within a store", featuring some 7,000 pieces of renovation and restoration hardware.

You'll find many of Elliott's Hardware and Hardware Plus products on display in the Home of Tomorrow. And in Elliott's stores in Dallas, Grapevine and Plano, today.

The Beauty of Natural Stone

Adorn your home with the beauty of stone from the warm welcome of the exterior to the cool comfort of the interior. Stone has a beauty and functionality unparalleled by any other building material. Stone adds to the natural look and color scheme of your home. Stone also looks beautiful and adds lasting value and prestige to your high-traffic interiors. Stone can give the beauty of hardwood flooring that is practically maintenance free. Limestone countertops, slate backsplashes and stone floors add distinction but not cost to your kitchen. Exotic walls and countertops add beauty to the work area. The multitude of colors and textures presents limitless interior decoration options.

Planning a backyard beautification project? The backyard and the pool area provide a natural environment for use of stone. Use stone and enjoy years of solid satisfaction with the look and comfort you desire. Only natural stone can provide the distinction and beauty to a backyard pool and landscaping that discriminating homeowners demand. Stone gives the best first impression when it is designed for functionality and beauty. Let our stone specialists help design your home as cost effectively as possible.

2000 STATE FAIR OF TEXAS

Welcome to the State Fair of Texas and Celebrating the 21st Century.

Come in and experience a mix of the old and the new and where 'old' can become new again within the "AT&T Home of Tomorrow".

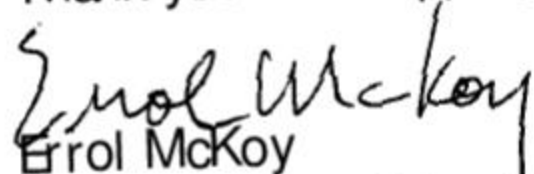

The house features cutting-edge life-style products and services from one of the nation's premier communications leaders. While you are touring this state-of-the-art home, you will experience firsthand the latest in home communications—including some still on the drawing boards.

Services include digital cable, high-speed Internet access, local and long distance phone service together, wireless services and futuristic inventions from AT&T Labs.

After you complete your tour of the beautifully appointed AT&T Home of Tomorrow and desire additional information, stop by the nearby FutureVisions exhibit located in the Centennial Building. You will be able to browse the Internet via AT&T Wireless technology, surf the 'Net over AT&T's high-speed cable system, view more than 100 channels of television programming on the company's digital network and review various local and long distance promotions. AT&T representatives will be available to answer any questions and demonstrate the technology.

The association with AT&T and The Home of the Year officials, has allowed the State Fair to deliver a memorable experience for the entire family to enjoy.

Thank you for dropping in,

Errol McKoy

Welcome to the AT&T Home of Tomorrow

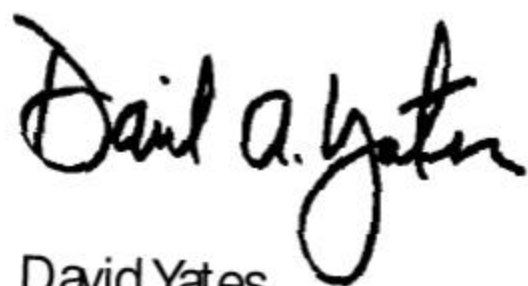

On behalf of all of our participants and sponsors, welcome to The AT&T Home of Tomorrow. This design and idea show home will have more visitors than any other in history!

A revolutionary partnership between Hillcrest Custom Homes and Champion Homes, this 1,850 square foot home was built in 30 days. But, it doesn't look like it. And that's the point.

In many ways the story of the Home of Tomorrow is as much about the craftsmen and building techniques as it is about the high-tech wizardry that makes up the home's intelligent systems. We employed a new concept in home-building called off-site stick-building. The exterior of the home is constructed indoors in a controlled environment and then moved to the homesite and placed on a pier and beam foundation. The interior of the home is custom-finished on-site.

The home is built to UBC Code and features 9 foot ceilings, 2" x 6" framing, high energy efficiency levels, a 100% masonry exterior, and is loaded with high-quality materials, brand-name products and amenities. It has been designed to fit comfortably on a typical 55 by 130 foot subdivision lot. The standard home plan is priced at $99,000 excluding land and can be built in about 45 days.

Enjoy your tour!

David Yates
Developer, The Home Of Tomorrow

P.S. Please visit our website at www.TheHomeOfTomorrow.com for a complete list of participants and information about the Home.

IT'S ALL IN THE WRIST

Time is of the essence for this wireless network prototype phone/watch from AT&T Labs. Users can communicate directly through the wrist device or use the detachable ear-piece/microphone. When the earpiece is worn, incoming calls and pages are audible through the earphone. Otherwise pages can be received in vibrating mode. Speech-recognition technology lets users speak into the device to get information, such as sports scores or stock quotes, from the Internet.

RING IN THE NEW

Telephones may never look the same as high-speed Internet access incorporates into next-generation devices. It looks like a regular phone but uses a touch-screen interface instead of buttons. The screen also serves as a sketchpad where users can scribble the next theory of relativity or play tic-tac-toe with friends. Callers can also use it to view photos and even order from their favorite restaurants directly from the menu. Researchers at AT&T Labs have prototyped this device where all applications run over the network – eliminating any risk of viruses.

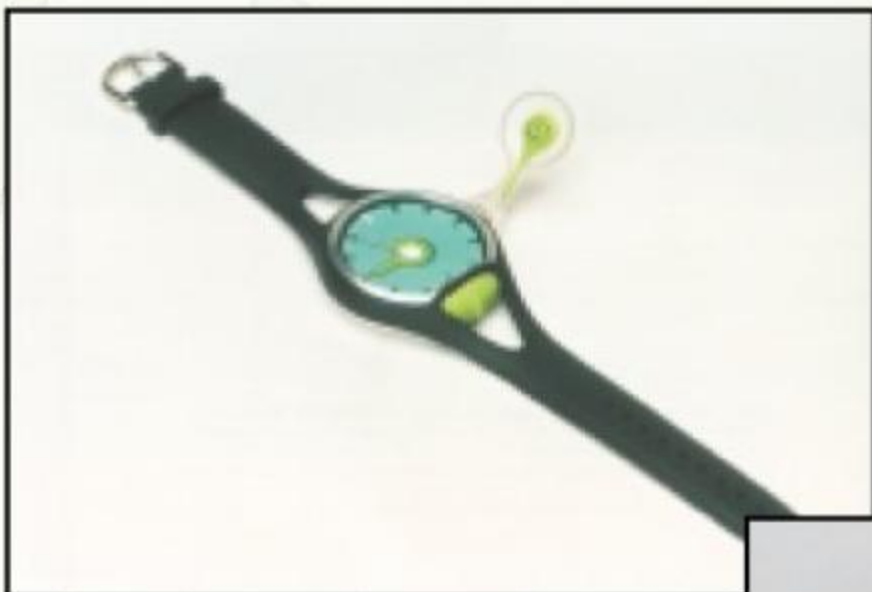

DOWNHILL RACERS

Skiers can use the built-in wireless phone to tell friends what a great time they're having as they whoosh down the slopes. They can even transmit video of their skiing experience over the Internet using the built-in camera. The wireless Internet link lets skiers pull down maps (projected onto the visors) of the course below to see details and directions for upcoming turns, twists, warnings, and alerts. The prototype goggles from AT&T Labs also provide full-featured stereo sound so you can listen to your favorite music all the way down the slope and back up again. In case of emergency, the goggles are linked to the Global positioning Satellite system to provide rescuers with location information.

FOLLOWING IN THEIR FOOTSTEPS

Working parents at the office can play with their children at home using this digital videophone mounted inside a transparent ball. Toddlers will know they're being followed as parents use a remote control console (such as a touch-tone phone or videophone with a trackball) to direct the motorized acrylic ball to trail behind children as they roam around the house. The Kids Communicator prototype from AT&T Labs enables parents and children to see and hear each other through wireless Internet links.

AT&T Labs – the research and development unit of AT&T – is working to provide seamless, easy-to-use, high quality, mission critical, affordable communication between people and machines, anywhere, anytime.

About Dale Moses, Artist

Contemporary artist Dale Moses was born in Dallas, Texas in 1947. He studied at the University of Texas, Arlington, receiving a Bachelors of Fine Arts in Painting. Moses, who began painting full time in 1985, has developed his art into an easily recognizable style of colors and simple images. His works are hung in private collections as well as national and international collections throughout the United States and Europe. His work is now available in limited edition giclee prints.

A warm and engaging person, Moses loves sharing his enthusiasm with people who enjoy art. Moses continues to live and paint in Dallas.

About Rolando Diaz, Artist

Rolando Diaz is a Cuban/American artist who believes that "art is an expression of life." His extensive travels throughout Europe, the Caribbean and the USA has helped the artist retain memories and events that many times are expressed on the canvas.

He has exhibited in galleries and museums, slowly building a large collector's list. Diaz is the signature artist for Carlson Worldwide's Samba Room restaurants. He is also generous in his giving at auctions to special organizations to raise funds. The Pegasus Project for Dallas was one where one of Diaz's works was bought for $25,000 by Paul Harris of the Hoblitzel Foundation. Diaz is a fairly new upcoming artist with high potential in the art world.
